General Information

Short summary

A Greek engineering and renewables expert is looking for new solutions to integrate into industrial and engineering installations in Greece, with particular focus on wind and solar energy.

Full description

This Greek entrepreneur has been active in developing and implementing various industrial and engineering projects for the domestic market since 2003. Over the years he has acquired significant expertise and experience in managing and completing a number of installations, particularly related to renewable energy (wind and solar). Apart from handling major projects for businesses, the client also has knowledge of dealing with domestic residential installations.

The energy sector has become a vital factor of the prosperity and survival of businesses and households. This Greek SME offers customised and effective solutions for energy efficiency for its customers.

The client has long-standing links with various industries in Greece and can approach them with new innovative solutions from foreign providers, for example in order to propose solar thermal installation on their premises.

This SME employs a small but select team of skilled staff and works all over Greece, as well as Bulgaria and North Macedonia.

The Greek entrepreneur is looking for innovative partners and products in order to strengthen his company's position in the industrial energy projects and services sector.
